Description

There's a rhythm to mornings in Turnberry Woods that larger communities can't replicate. Thirty-two homes, tucked between the golf course and a quiet preserve. Small enough that your neighbors become familiar faces at the pool. Private enough that your lanai feels like your own corner of Naples. At 6073 Ashford Lane #802, the day unfolds without effort. Sunlight fills 2,160 square feet of thoughtfully arranged space—living areas that flow naturally from morning coffee to evening conversation, a kitchen where the walk-in pantry holds everything you actually need, not just what fits. Granite counters that have hosted Sunday brunches and Tuesday leftovers with equal grace. The primary suite feels like a retreat within a retreat: dual walk-in closets that eliminate the morning negotiation, a whirlpool tub for evenings when you've earned the pause, dual vanities where getting ready doesn't require coordination. The second bedroom offers true privacy for guests who visit for a week, not just a weekend. The den becomes whatever the moment requires—Zoom calls with the door closed, reading chair by the window, the place where hobbies finally get attention. And then there's the flex room. Not every Turnberry Woods residence has this—just a few were built with the extra space that becomes whatever your life requires. Home office. Workshop. Storage that doesn't live in the garage. The kind of flexibility that makes a house feel custom-built for how you actually live. Outside, the preserve provides a backdrop that never demands attention but always delivers calm. Inside, everything that matters has been handled—new roof, hurricane protection, systems that won't surprise you. This is what 2,160 square feet of first-floor living looks like when intention meets execution in Turnberry Woods' most intimate enclave.
